Heads Of Z.O.A. Deny They Lack Leadership

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel was roundly criticized by American Zionist leaders and an Israeli financier for his recent assertion that American Zionist leadership has been bankrupt since establishment of the new state.

Part of the criticism was delivered at a luncheon in New York given by the administration of the Zionist Organization of America for Dr. Sidney Marks, its national secretary who left for a month in Israel to establish projects there which the Z. O. A. is sponsoring. Further answer to Mr. Ben-Gurion was made in a statement issued by Mrs. Samuel W. Halprin, president of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America.

Benjamin G. Browdy, president of the Z. O. A., Louis Falk and Dr. Samuel Margoshes, vice-presidents, and other Zionist Organization officials made clear that the projects for which Dr. Marks is going to Israel were a refutation of the charge of bankruptcy. Those projects include establishment of ten trade schools, an American-style business college, the recruiting of skilled Americans to teach in Israel, the shipment of food, clothing and materials and completing the Z. O. A. house in Tel Aviv as an American information center.

It is known that Zionist leaders feel that Mr. Ben-Gurion's criticism of them is political. He is a Labor Zionist with a Socialist orientation. The Z. O. A. and Hadassah are general Zionist groups.

New Health Plan In Israel To Go Far Beyond Usual

Appointment of Dr. Kalman J. Mann, of Jerusalem, as director general of the Hadassah medical organization in Israel was announced at a meeting of Hadassah leaders in New York.

Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, with 300,000 members, supports a major health, hospital and medical and nursing teaching in Israel. Dr. Mann, the fourth person to hold the post of director general since Hadassah began its medical work in 1913, succeeds Dr. Eli Davis, who will continue as a specialist in internal medicine in the Hadassah out-patient department.

Dr. Mann, who went to America for consultations with Hadassah leaders, told the meeting that Hadassah and the medical advisory board of the Hebrew University have evolved a new community health program for Israel which he said is more comprehensive than any practiced elsewhere, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

The new program, to be put into effect first among one-sixth of Israel's 1,250,000 persons as quickly as possible, goes far beyond present practices of preventive and curative medicine, he said. In addition to utilizing accepted practices for preventing and treating illnesses, he said, the new program will seek to combine nutrition, proper play and recreation facilities and dissemination of information on mental, emotional, and sexual matters into a rounded program to eliminate the conditions which cause illness.

At the same time, he said, this

Calls Nazism In Latin America Peril To Jews

Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the United States branch of the World Jewish Congress, declared in London that Latin America now was the center of the international Nazi movement.

Addressing the fifteenth annual conference of the British section of the Congress, Dr. Goldstein told of close relations between Nazi and Arab communities in Latin America, which, he said, in some cases were more numerous and influential politically than Jewish communities.

He said that 400,000 of the 700,000 Jews in Latin America were in Argentina. The centers of Nazi activity in Latin America are being reinforced by immigrants from German and Nazi activists from other countries, in the Middle East, Dr. Goldstein continued. German technical experts and persons with records of extreme participation in the Hitlerite movement occupy influential positions in Latin-American government service, he contended.

Dr. Goldstein said that Nazi publishing houses in Latin America openly were advocating a revival of Nazi ideas. He stressed the threat to Jewish communities in those countries and the role of the World Jewish Congress in meeting this threat, says the New York Times.

In Bolivia, he said, a series of proposed economic measures against naturalized citizens that would have ruined Jewish immigrants was held in abeyance after World Jewish Congress representations to Bolivia's President, and her aides in Washington and the United Nations. Citizenship is denied to thousands of Jews in Latin America, despite lifetime service there, through administrative devices, he said.

Dr. Goldstein indicated that reconciliation with Germany would take generations whether or not a restitution degree was achieved in the near future. Most of the German material reparations should go to Israel, he said.

The British section of the World Jewish Congress endorsed the decision of a conference of Jewish organizations in New York to pursue Jewish claims against Germany for losses suffered by Jews under Nazism and the restitution of expropriated Jewish property. The conference strongly urged the British Government to uphold the principles on which war criminals were condemned and not to surrender them because of political expediency.

A. L. Easterman, political director of the World Jewish Congress, said the Western powers should not yield to pressure from Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of Western Germany, but should demand just and full punishment for those who wrought death, fear and misery among so many thousands, reports the New York Times.

Sees Jews Insecure In Four Arab Nations

The Arab countries are potentially ripe for revolution by violence, the Institute of Jewish Affairs of the World Jewish Congress said in a report written by Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, director of the institute. He said religious life was being supplanted by nationalism as the driving force in the Arab states, although "this nationalism is purely negative in character."

Dr. Robinson added that "constructive nationalism," which would endeavor to overcome the extreme poverty and corruption in government in the Arab states, had not yet taken shape. The study on which the report was based covered conditions in Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, and Iraq. Dr. Robinson declared that none of these nations had adopted any constructive measures to establish equal rights for all, set up universal education, institute social security or improve sanitary conditions.

"Too many people, too little food, money badly spent by grasping politicians, new ideas of equality sweeping in from several sides at once" were mentioned in the report as some of the problems becoming constantly more pressing in the Near East.

Dr. Robinson reported that there already were instances of scattered violence against the old feudal system in Syria. He said there were reports that dissatisfied Arab peasants were joining Nasi, Com-

Awards Keep Hillman Ideas Alive

Two New York newspaper men, a New England physician and a novelist received the $500 prize awards of 1950 of the Sidney Hillman Foundation, named in honor of the late president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, C. I. O.

The Sidney Hillman Foundation was established in 1947 with the objective of keeping alive Mr. Hillman's ideas of enlightened labor-management relations, race relations and world peace, says the New York Times. Judges who selected the 1950 prizewinners were Lewis Gannett, book editor of The New York Herald Tribune; William L. Shirer, radio commentator and author, and Thomas L. Stokes, syndicated columnist.

A. H. Raskin, national labor correspondent of The New York Times, and Murray Kempton, labor columnist of The New York Post, won prizes for outstanding work in the field of labor reporting. Mr. Raskin was honored for several series of articles on industrial peace in the clothing industry, unemployment problems, pensions and manpower. Mr. Kempton's award was for several columns on labor in the South.

Dr. James H. Means, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and formerly of the Harvard Medical School, received his prize for two articles in The Atlantic Monthly defending England's national health program and attacking the American Medical Association as an enemy of progress in medicine.

John Hersey was selected for his novel, "The Wall," dealing with the fate of Jews at the hands of the Nazis in the ghettoes of Warsaw. This was the first year that the Hillman awards were given for accomplishments in the fields of journalism, magazine writing and TV. Am. In other years they have gone for outstanding public service.

Jacob S. Potofsky, chairman of the Foundation and president of the clothing union, presided at the award luncheon at the Commodore Hotel. He said the awards were given "to encourage the best in America and elsewhere in the crucial areas of human relations upon which light must constantly be thrown."

Mr. Raskin, in accepting his prize, said the selection of labor reporters for the awards personified the change that had taken place in the field of labor journalism. He pointed out that labor reporters used to consider their jobs the reporting of strikes. Today, he added, the labor reporter covers all phases of labor and industrial relations.

Dr. Means, who resigned from the A.M.A. in protest against the "political policies" of that group, said that if private enterprise failed to provide proper medical care, the task would have to be undertaken by the Government. He pointed out that the social and economic aspects of medicine had not kept pace with the progress made by scientific medicine.

Egypt Relaxes A Bit Toward Israel

Egypt has noticeably eased her attitude toward Israel in recent weeks as her struggle with Britain has become more acute. Despite the change, Egypt appears to have made no direct approach to Israel with a view to discussing outstanding issues between the two countries, such as Cairo's halting of ships bound for Israel through the Suez Canal. Israel, sensing the new situation, is understood to have put out feelers toward the Egyptians without success.

The lack of concrete steps by Egypt was attributed in Middle East circles to the apparent feeling by Cairo that a united Arab front against Britain was more important than openly mending fences with Israel. While Syria and Iraq have been more vitriolic than ever in their attacks on Israel in the United Nations General Assembly, Egypt has directed almost all her fire at Britain. Lebanon also appears to have softened somewhat in her attitude toward Tel Aviv.

Added evidence of Cairo's more relaxed attitude toward Israel is its agreement to police the Gaza strip and prevent Arab refugees from villaging in Israel. An anti-

NINETEEN URGE BETTER LIFE FOR MIDDLE EAST TO AVOID DANGER

Nineteen leading Americans urged the U.N. General Assembly to set up an $800,000,000 program to resettle 876,000 remaining Arab refugees of the 1948 Palestine war and to develop natural resources of the Middle East states over the next five years.

A $300,000,000 resettlement fund and a $500,000,000 resources development commission, harnessing water and power resources of the Jordan, Tigris, Euphrates and Litani Rivers highlighted the memorandum by such individuals as Sumner Welles, former Under-Secretary of State, and Paul Porter, former American delegate to the U. N. Palestine Conciliation Commission.

Arab states would be called upon to donate land for each refugee family, and Israel to contribute as compensation for abandoned Arab land in Israel, after taking account of Israeli war losses and seized Jewish properties in Arab countries, says the New York Herald Tribune.

The memorandum said the feasibility of the financing should be shown by the fact that more than $1,000,000,000 has been spent in resettling 669,518 Jewish immigrants in Israel since its creation May 15, 1948. Of this, the Israeli government spent $370,000,000 on immigration and agricultural settlement, while $491,000,000 was spent by six voluntary agencies—the Jewish Agency, Jewish National Fund, Palestine Foundation Fund, Joint Distribution Committee, Hadassah and World Jewish Congress.

The new plan resembles in part proposals put before the Assembly by the U. N. Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees for a $250,000,000 program of relief and reintegration for the three years ending June 30, 1954, when it was noted the refugees had already cost the international community $66,000,000. But the Americans' memorandum attempted also to estimate cost of development which the U. N. agency's leaders also have held essential.

The new plan held that Iraq was using only 20 per cent of its 30,000,000 cultivable acres, and noted President Truman's International Development Advisory Board had estimated it could absorb 750,000 new inhabitants. Citing detailed projects, the memorandum called Syria capable of developing 150,000 more acres in two projects alone; Lebanon, 400,000 more, and Jordan, 2,000,000, more, through irrigation and modern farming techniques.

By contrast, Israel faces need for opening its doors to 700,000 to 1,000,000 more Jews fleeing from anti-Semitism, the memorandum said. Israel expects 200,000 in the next three years from Europe, from among the 260,000 Jews in Romania; 100,000 in Hungary; 45,000 in Poland; 15,000 in Germany; 5,000 in Austria. Another 400,000 in that period are expected from the Moslem countries—Egypt, with 45,000 Jews now; Iraq, 15,000, Lebanon, 7,000; Syria, 6,000; Iran, 70,000; Morocco, 258,000; Algeria, 130,000; Tunisia, 90,000; Libya, 1,000; Aden, 700.

URGES MEN AND WOMEN TO PLAN STUDY TIME

Jewish congregations were urged to establish boards of education for adults to parallel existing boards of Jewish education for young people by Dr. Israel M. Goldman, rabbi, of Congregation Chizuk Amuno, Baltimore, Md., director of the National Academy for Adult Jewish Education, and chairman of a national conference on adult Jewish education which was held at The Jewish Theological Seminary of America, in New York.

Dr. Goldman called upon 300 rabbis, educators and lay delegates who assembled from all parts of the country to "set aside fixed periods of time for the purposes of pursuing programs of Jewish study." "We know," Dr. Goldman declared, "that only as men and women continually master the moral and ethical principles of their own religious heritage do they make the maximum contribution to the glory of our country. We realize that only an intellectually vigorous and a morally vigilant citizenry can keep our democracy free and strong. We call upon the Jewish men and women of America to become once again the People of the Book, and to engage in regular activities for the mastery of Jewish knowledge."

Professor Martin Buber, internationally-known philosopher, scholar, author and pioneer in adult Jewish education, who is in America as visiting professor of philosophy at the Jewish Theological Seminary, declared: "When a particular historical situation demands a particular type of man, it is the task of adult education to create that man. This has been the problem in Israel, where certain historical necessities have made demands for a certain kind of citizen. I believe that this is also the case in America, although my understanding here is more limited, since I see the situation only as a visitor. But it seems to me that the world today demands a new synthesis of people and faith. The problems of our world have disrupted the unity that did once exist, and today it is our problem to create a new synthesis, not by words or by preaching, but by life. The problem of adult education in your great country is to train the men and women who can accomplish this task."

ONCE WAS AIDE TO SCHACHT

Dr. Max Immanuel, a writer on economic subjects and consultant to the Board of Economic Warfare during World War II, died in New York at his home, 230 Riverside Drive, after a long illness. His age was 61.

Dr. Immanuel came to the United States from Germany in 1938. In pre-Hitler days, he was an assistant to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht when the latter was president of the Reichsbank. Dr. Immanuel broke with him in 1927, when Schacht began to ally himself with the German Nationalists.

Before leaving Germany, Dr. Immanuel was a consultant to United States companies seeking to make investments in the Reich. He became an American citizen in 1944. Surviving are his widow, Rebecca Allinson Immanuel, and two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Bauer of New York and Mrs. Sheffie Rosenfeld of Rochester, N. Y.

A child's best insurance against contagious disease is immunization while he is quite young. The family doctor or well-baby clinic will advise as to the best time for protecting the youngster against diphtheria, whooping cough, smallpox and tetanus.

After he is one month old, a child should be taught to accept food from a spoon. This will help to introduce the solid foods which will be part of his diet at three or four months. A good start can be made by giving him fruit juices and vitamin D from a spoon.

Handless Pianist Of Israel Gives Fine Concert

The hands that Raymond Leizer was born with were blown off by a land mine three years ago in Israel, where he was a Haganah soldier. He gave a piano recital in New York before an audience that had expected to be amazed that he could play at all. When he finished the first piece there was a moment of incredulous silence, then a roar of applause.

Mr. Leizer, who was a concert pianist before he was wounded, had given a performance of Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2" of which no ten-fingered pianist would have been ashamed. He has only four metal fingers, two on each hand.

The recital was given at the Lotos Club, 5 East Sixty-sixth Street, New York, where a hundred persons attended a fund-raising party for the Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation in West Orange, N. J. The three-year-old institute, a non-profit center for civilian rehabilitation cases, has raised half of the $250,000 it is seeking to expand its facilities.

Dr. Henry H. Kessler, founder and director, told the guests that while the Veterans Administration had provided extensive care and training for the rehabilitation of wounded war veterans, the civilian facilities could meet only "one-tenth of 1 per cent of the need."

In the four years of World War II, he said, there were 120,000 civilian amputees to 20,000 in the military. Dr. Kessler was chief of the Navy's rehabilitation service in the war.

Before the concert, Mr. Leizer, a former patient of Dr. Kessler's, demonstrated the working of his artificial hands. He has two pairs, one pair for general use and the other for playing the piano. He showed how live muscles in the stump move the pincer-like fingers by means of pegs and connecting rods.

His everyday hands, with hook-shaped fingers, cannot span enough keys, he explained, so he had a second pair made with rubber-tipped straight fingers. He said he had to rearrange all his music.

BRAZIL JEWRY JOINS W.J.C.

The affiliation of the newly-formed Confederation of Brazilian Jewry, representing the second largest Jewish community in Latin-America, to the World Jewish Congress has been formalized by ratification of the Confederation's action by its three major branches. The Confederation, immediately after it was formed in a three-day conference at Sao Paulo early this fall, adopted a resolution to join the more than sixty other communities in the WJC, declaring that the united representation of the Jewish people throughout the world was vital and praising the WJC for its protection of Jewish honor and integrity as well as life and property.

Since then, the Federations of Jews in Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and Porto Allegro, the three largest Brazilian cities and the principal Jewish centers in the nation, have ratified the resolution in unanimous votes, announced Dr. I. Schwartzhart, director of the WJC Organization Department, which is to cooperate in aiding the small and relatively isolated Jewish communities scattered across Brazil. Formation of the Confederation, first central representative body in the history of the 110,000 Jews in Brazil, climaxed a six-year effort for the unification of Brazilian Jewry. The new organization is headed by Prof. Fritz Feigl, one of the world's most famous chemists and the director of the Chemical Institute of Brazil.

A child needs help in growing up. His understanding of adult habits and ways of speech may land him trouble unless his family understands the reason for things he says and does. He usually has such a reason, he may be following the example of some beloved elder, except that his statements may appear to be deliberate lies. It is wise to seek the source of his words, without letting him feel that he is not trusted.

U.N. Body On Arab-Israel Peace Gives Up

The United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission made public in Paris its report of failure during the past three years in making any "substantial progress" toward a settlement between the Arab governments and Israel. The commission implied that it was ready to abandon its efforts and dissolve.

The report said changes in Palestine during the past three years, plus unwillingness of either side to implement fully the United Nations resolutions on the Palestine problem, "have made it impossible for the commission to carry out its mandate."

"This fact should be taken into consideration in any further approach to the Palestine problem," it added.

The report emphasized that all aspects of the question are interrelated and hence that United Nations efforts toward Palestine stability, security and peace must be coordinated, according to the New York Times.

Since the drafting of the report was concluded several weeks ago discussions have been going on at the Palais de Chaillot among the various United Nations officials concerned with Palestine as to who should inherit the responsibilities of the commission. In view of the commission's report the current session of the General Assembly is expected to dissolve the group. It is understood that no concrete plan has been agreed on for the allocation of its functions.

MARRIAGES

COHEN-SMILEY

The marriage of Miss Sally Smiley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Smiley, 7847 Birnam Avenue, to Bernard Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cohen, 4897 Lacombe Avenue, took place at Beth David Synagogue, on November 17, at half-past six o'clock. Rabbi Isaac Teicher officiated, assisted by Cantor Joshua Diln. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown of white slipper satin and tulle. The bodice was appliqued, and fashioned with an appliqued stand-up collar, with long, tapering sleeves; and a fitted, pointed waistline; and the skirt was fashioned of multiple layers of white tulle over satin, with pearl-bead and beaded-embroidery; and shaped into a train of tulle. Her veil of tulle illusion was draped to a helmet headdress of seed-pearl beading. She carried a prayer book, with mauve orchids, and white flowered streamers. Miss Shirley Dorfman, the maid of honour, wore a pale pink net gown, with a two-tiered net skirt; and had a pink net crown headdress; and carried a cascade bouquet of pink Delight roses. Misses Thelma Stavitt and Elaine Steinberg, the junior bridesmaids, wore long dresses of lilac-shaded net over taffeta; and made with off-the-shoulder necklines, with capelet collars. They had pleated bonnets of taffeta; and carried nosegays, tied with matching ribbons. Jack Toolerman was best man; and the ushers were: Gerald Smiley, Stanley Backman, Issie Snitzer, Seymour Singer, Norman Warner and Jack Singer, while Norman Smiley and Melvin Ross were junior ushers. The synagogue was decorated with lighted candelabra along the aisle, and archways fashioned of varicolored chrysanthemums, pompoms and carnations. Baskets of flowers were placed under the wedding canopy. There was music; and "Because" was sung. At the reception in the Synagogue hall, trellises of multi-colored flowers formed the background for the receiving line. The bride's table was centred with floral arrangements and the cloth was scalloped with foliage and there were flowers, and colored tapers, on all the tables. Receiving, Mrs. Smiley, mother of the bride, wore a gown of cobalt-blue nylon-lace; with a matching tuxedo-bolero, over satin. She had a blue velvet leaf hat, trimmed with silver-shaded beading and jewel trimming; and had a mauve orchid corsage. Mrs. Cohen, mother of the groom, wore a dinner-gown of taupe lace and crepe, styled with a V-shaped neckline and slim skirt with a pink plush hat, trimmed with rhinestones; and a mauve orchid corsage. The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in Miami Beach, Florida; and Havana, Cuba. For travelling the bride wore a grey wool-flannel suit, with a cherry-red collar; and cherry-red velour hat; and black accessories. They are living at the home of the groom's parents. J. Reiner, of Toronto, Ont.; and Mrs. H. Stein, of New York, were wedding guests.

SEGAL-GARDNER

The marriage of Miss Barbara Marlar Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Gardner, 300 Central Park West, New York, to Ralph Segal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Segal, 4869 Jean Brillant Avenue, took place at six o'clock, on December 9, at Bnai Jeshurun Temple, in New York. Rabbi Charles Bender, of Montreal, Rabbi William Berkowitz, and Cantor Robert Segal officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a princess gown of antique ivory-coloured satin, with a high neckline, long, tight sleeves coming to points at the wrists, and a full skirt ending in a long train. The collar and sleeves were trimmed with Alencon lace and seed-pearl beads. Her three-tiered tulle illusion veil, ending beyond the train, was attached to an Alencon lace and pearl-bead-trimmed cap, and she carried ivory and brown phalanopsis orchids with lilies-of-the-valley, on a Bible belonging to her grandmother. Mrs. Robert Jeck, of New Brunswick, N.J., as matron of honour, wore a floor-length strapless gown of pink taffeta, with matching stole. She carried a bridal wreath of rubrum lilies and ivy, twined with ribbon, and had a tiara of baby's breath and pink roses. Misses Genevieve Fisch, of New York, and Irma Kriger, of Portland, Maine, as bridesmaids, wore coral-coloured faille gowns, in the Empire silhouette, trimmed with coral lace and rhinestones. They also carried bridal wreaths and had tiaras of roses. Harold Segal, brother of the groom, of Montreal, was best man. The ushers were: Mitchel Garfinkle, Gerald Guttman, Martin Eidinger, Douglas Gross, Herbert Siblin, and Elliot Godel, all of Montreal. The aisles and altar were decorated with pink and white gladioli and snapdragons in pagoda style. A reception took place in the grand ballroom of the Temple, where similar floral decorations were used. Mrs. Gardner, mother of the bride, was in a gown of orchid-mauve Alencon lace over taffeta, with matching hat and shoes, and carried violet-tinted camellias on a pearl bag. Mrs. Segal, mother of the groom, wore a champagne-coloured taffeta gown, with matching hat and shoes, and carried rose-tinted cybidium orchids on a brocaded bag. Mr. and Mrs. Segal left for a West Indies cruise, the bride travelling in a suit of Scottish tweed, with beige and brown accessories. They will reside at 4970 Ridgevale Avenue.

Whooping cough in its early stages is somewhat deceiving. It starts with a cough and runny nose, at which time it is most contagious. When whooping starts and the child is repeatedly sick to his stomach, it is almost certainly whooping cough, an infection of windpipe and bronchial tubes. This disease, preventable by immunization, may leave serious after effects and requires a doctor's immediate attention.

PROGRAM TO ENRICH JEWISH LIFE IN U.S.

The Brooklyn, N. Y., Jewish Community Council, at its twelfth annual convention, adopted a six-point program "to strengthen and enrich Jewish life in America."

The program included expansion of interfaith work to promote better understanding; defense of the Jewish community against bigotry and anti-Semitic manifestations; defending civil liberties and freedom of conscience for all as a means of strengthening American democracy; promoting Jewish culture, tradition history and aspirations; expanding synagogue activity and winning back unaffiliated persons, and meeting community philanthropic responsibilities by continued support for the United Jewish Appeal, the Israel bond drive, the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies and other Jewish and non-sectarian causes.

A new watch factory is being established in Jerusalem by a Swiss manufacturer. Production of 2,000 watches monthly is to get under way by the end of this year.

Industrial hazards include injury to the skin through burns, cuts or from the effect of chemicals or other substances. Oil and grease may clog the pores and hair follicles, introducing infection. Mild soap and water and, if necessary, a hand cleanser with a vegetable abrasive such as cornmeal, will usually do a safe and efficient cleansing job.

Tells N.Y. State Chamber About Nazism

Benjamin J. Buttenwieser, former assistant American High Commissioner to Germany, expressed confidence that a "reformed Germany will cast her lot with the West", but warned that "nationalistic extremism and neo-Nazism" still have an appeal in certain quarters.

Speaking at the monthly meeting of the New York Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Buttenwieser declared:

"Certain quarters act as though world politics revolve around Germany. Playing 'hard to get' is being practiced by all too many Germans who would trifle with their country's destiny for their own selfish gain or political advantage. One leading political figure even went so far recently as to say that it is not a question of whether Germany wants to join Europe, but whether Europe wants to join Germany."

Mr. Buttenwieser said he was referring to Dr. Hans Christoph Seebohm, Minister of Transportation in the Bonn government.

Mr. Buttenwieser said the American government welcomes German participation in Western defense "and we are seeking to establish a new relationship with Germany, but not at the sacrifice of the principles for which we fought or at the compromise of the progress we have made toward immunizing Germany against the virus of Nazism."

Mr. Buttenwieser's address was his first since he resigned his government post. He is a partner of Kuhn, Loeb Co., investment bankers.

The youngster who started school this fall will have begun to show the effects of his lessons and new contacts. He will want to boast of his successes and will expect everyone's undivided attention. He should never be snubbed or laughed at, or he may develop a feeling of shyness and self-consciousness and feel that his school career is unimportant to those whose opinion he values. While he should not be allowed to monopolize attention, he should be given an opportunity to tell about "his day".

Royal Bank Sets New Records As Assets Cross $2.5 Billion

Total Deposits at $2,350,000,000
New High Point in Canadian Banking

New high records in the field of Canadian banking are revealed in the annual financial statement of The Royal Bank of Canada for the year ended November 30, 1951. The report, just issued, shows total assets have now topped the $2.5 billion mark and stand at $2,515,645,208, an increase of $18,268,866 over the record figure of a year ago.

Deposits have also reached the highest figure in Canadian banking history, the total at the end of the Royal Bank's fiscal year standing at $2,350,314,347 as compared with the previous year's figure of $2,337,503,468. This increase has occurred despite a reduction in Government deposits of nearly $46,000,000. Interest-bearing deposits have also reached a new high level of $1,123,723,791, an increase of $19,805,565 as compared with the corresponding figure in the 1950 balance sheet.

The steady rise of interest-bearing deposits, characteristic of bank statements during the past few years, shows a tendency to level off, due no doubt to the impact of heavier taxes and higher living costs. Non-interest bearing public deposits have increased by $39,694,707 and now total $1,085,717,203.

Business Loans Up

Demand for commercial loans in Canada has continued heavy, due to the high level of commercial and industrial activity during the past twelve months. This is reflected in an increase of $67,122,070 under this heading as compared with the corresponding figure in 1950. Much of this increase occurred prior to the Government's announced policy of credit restriction in February. Call loans in Canada at $21,191,848, are down $31,347,547.

The liquid position of the bank continues very strong. Cash assets total $488,057,439, which is equal to 20% of all the bank's public liabilities. Liquid assets amount to $1,624,599,059, equivalent to 66.96% of the bank's liabilities to the public. Included in the bank's liquid assets are Dominion and Provincial Government securities totalling $836,209,958.

Bank Premises Account has increased from $17,008,704 to $19,508,884, due to the bank's continuing program of branch building and improvement. During the year major improvements and extensions were completed at a number of branch points.

Taxes Affect Profit

Before provision for taxes and depreciation, profits are higher. After the usual deductions for Contingency Reserves and Staff Pension Fund, total profits amounted to $12,983,064 as compared with $11,845,138 for the previous year. Of this amount $5,276,000 was reserved for Dominion and provincial taxes, an increase of $1,264,000. In addition $1,400,949 was set aside for depreciation of bank premises. After the above deductions the net profit was $8,306,115 as compared with $6,559,725 in 1950.

Out of net profits $4,200,000 was paid in dividends, which includes an extra distribution this year of 20 cents per share and $2,106,115 carried forward to Profit and Loss Account, resulting in a balance of $3,026,154. From this amount $2,000,000 has been transferred to the bank's Reserve Fund, which now stands at $52,000,000, leaving a balance of $1,026,154 in the Profit and Loss Account.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders will be held at the head office of the bank here on Thursday, January 10 at 11 a.m.

Says Not To Meddle In Affairs In Israel

Opposition to interference in the internal affairs of Israel by outsiders who felt privileged to do so by virtue of their philanthropic devotion was expressed in New York by Justice Justine Wise Polier, president of the women's division of the American Jewish Congress. Re-elected president for her third consecutive term, Justice Polier said that the right of determination of the kind of government that Israel should have belonged only to the people of the fledging nation.

Mrs. Polier held that American Jews were obligated both as Jews and Americans to fight against impairment of that freedom for Israeli citizens "as we would against any impairment of our own freedom." "Our respect for and sense of oneness with the people of Israel," she declared, "causes us to be concerned with their freedoms as we are with our freedoms.

"No gifts to Israel can justify political interference. We also feel sure that men and women of various political organizations must and will refrain from political interference in the life of Israel. Freedom of the people who inhabit the land to determine the government under which they shall live goes to the essence of freedom and democracy."

Mrs. Polier contended that preservation of our democratic society precluded any compromise with totalitarianism that "degrades human dignity." She cited the Soviet Union and Franco Spain as areas in which there was "no respect" for the conscience of the individual, and thus no spiritual freedom, reports the New York Times.

"Fascist dictatorships," she asserted, "have again proven that unless there be clear and absolute separation of church and state there will be neither freedom of conscience nor freedom of religion."

HAILS BRITISH TIES WITH ISRAEL

Herbert Morrison, until October the Foreign Secretary of the Labor Government, hailed the "steadily improving" relations between Britain and Israel. He expressed the hope for a better understanding among Middle East nations that would bring both Israel and Egypt into the cooperative defense of the area with the Western powers. He spoke in London at a dinner celebrating the fifteenth anniversary conference of the British section of the World Jewish Congress.

Lord Reading, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs in the new Conservative Government, and son of the late Rufus Isaacs, Liberal statesman, assured the Congress that it would continue to have a receptive hearing at the Foreign Office. Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the United States branch of the Congress, voiced the "deep satisfaction" of the American Jewish community at the growing pattern of friendly relations between Britain and Israel.

Dr. Goldstein referred to threats to Jews against which the Congress is on guard—to countries behind the Iron Curtain where the "body exists but the soul is consumed," to Arab countries where Jewish lives, he said, were threatened and to Latin America, where the Nazis have established a foothold and springboard.

Contrast baths for the feet will do much for their health. By immersing the feet alternately for two minutes in hot and then two minutes in cold water, circulation is improved and the whole body relaxed. The bathing may be continued for ten or fifteen minutes and then the feet should be thoroughly dried and dusted with a good foot powder.

Those who cannot swim should take advantage of winter swimming lessons, if that is possible in their community. Instruction in swimming should be an important item in a person's education, yet many fail to learn how to take care of themselves in the water in case of accident.

U.S. TO HELP ISRAEL PAY FOR GOODS

Up to $25,730,000 will be made available to Israel in United States economic assistance through an interim agreement, the U. S. State Department reported. Aid of up to $50,000,000 for Israel was provided in the new Mutual Security Act passed. The funds would be used for specific refugee relief and resettlement projects. The agreement was affected by an exchange of notes.

The United States will help Israel pay for $14,230,000 worth of goods bought since last July 1, including wheat, oil seeds, petroleum, and raw cotton for textile manufacture. The rest made available under the agreement will be used for contracting for $6,000,000 worth of food stuffs, $3,000,000 for parts for a power plant, and $2,500,000 worth of irrigation equipment.

MONTREAL MEETINGS

• ZIONIST Organization: Edward E. Gelber and Samuel E. Schwisberg, K.C., co-presidents, issued a statement which said in part: "There have been many comments in Zionist circles in Canada on the statement made several days ago by David Ben Gurion in the Knesset in which he declared that the Zionist movement in the United States had collapsed and was bankrupt inasmuch as not even five Zionist leaders in that country had settled in Israel after the creation of the State. Calls have come to the Headquarters of the Zionist Organization of Canada, asking for an official comment on Mr. Ben Gurion's declaration. Ordinarily we would not consider it appropriate for us to make any public comment on a declaration directed at American Zionists. Our colleagues in the United States are capable of speaking for themselves. We believe, however, that the statement of Israel's Prime Minister has implications that concern Zionists in Canada as well as their colleagues in the United States. Knowing the Jews of the United States and Canada, Mr. Ben Gurion must well be aware that no substantial emigration from these countries is to be expected in the foreseeable future. We are amazed that this subject should be brought up again when the entire problem was thrashed out at the World Zionist Congress in Jerusalem last summer. The Jews in this part of the world will not be panicked into migration by threats of it can happen heres. Here you have the largest Jewish community in the world. Without its moral, financial and political support, the State of Israel would not have come into being. Israel needs the continued assistance of the North American Jewish community."

• CANADIAN Jewish Congress: Persons who, while at concentration camp Auschwitz, had to work for the forced labor camp Buna-Monowitz of the I. G. KOSHER BAKERY MAY OPERATE LEGALLY ON SUNDAYS

Kosher Quality Bakery Regd., 4082 St. Lawrence Boulevard, Montreal, may be the only establishment of its kind in Quebec Province which is legally permitted to operate on Sunday; and its right was upheld in Recorder's Court in Montreal.

This revelation was made in Recorder's Court in the case of Moses Rand, owner of Kosher Quality Bakery Regd., who was charged last June with operating his store on Sunday in violation of the Lord's Day Act. Judgment was given by Recorder Pascal Lachapelle.

The act provides, however, that in a case of absolute necessity certain business establishments may be permitted to remain open on Sunday. This bakery shop caters to many of the city's synagogues which buy bakery products manufactured in strict accordance with the Jewish dietary laws.

The store customarily closes at sundown Friday in observance of the Jewish Sabbath and reopens at sundown Saturday. Michael Rubinstein, defence lawyer, contended that operating on Sunday was a religious and moral necessity because the bakery had to provide fresh cakes and bread for the synagogues the same day. Bakery products made before Friday's closing, he maintained, would be too stale for use on Sunday and operating on Saturday is contrary to Jewish religious laws.

Chief objection of the prosecution was that cakes were being baked on Sunday. The defence said that this, too, was a religious necessity because many Jewish weddings took place on Sunday, and synagogues would refuse to permit consumption of cakes baked on Saturday.

Recorder Lachapelle upheld the defence's contention and dismissed the action.

The Strange History Of The Magen David: Not A Jewish Symbol

BY GERSHOM SCHOLEM

The Magen David, now inscribed on the flag of Israel, is universally accepted as the Jewish symbol, reaching back to remote antiquity. Gershom Scholem, Professor of Jewish Mysticism at the Hebrew University, and one of the great Jewish scholars of our time, after closely investigating the roots of the symbol, comes to the conclusion that its origin is not specifically Jewish. In the 17th century it became the official seal of a number of Jewish communities of Central Europe. It was the Zionists who gave it new life when they chose it as a symbol for Zionism at the Basle Congress of 1897.

The six-pointed star known as the Magen David or Shield of David, which is now emblazoned on the flag of the State of Israel, is from every point of view a cause for astonishment.

What is the true history of this Shield of David in the Jewish tradition? Does it have its roots in the Jewish tradition at all? Has it always been accepted among wide or narrow circles as the symbol of Judaism, or at least as a specifically Jewish symbol? And if not, when did it begin to serve this function, and through what causes?

Actually the six-pointed star is not a Jewish symbol. It has none of the criteria that mark the nature and development of the true symbol. It does not express any "idea," it does not arouse ancient associations rooted in our experiences, and it is not a shorthand representation of an entire spiritual reality, understood immediately by the observer. It does not remind us of anything in Biblical or in rabbinic Judaism; it is not mentioned in the books of the devout or in all of Hasidic literature.

The two-triangle star is to be found among many people, both as decoration and as a magical sign, although it seems to be younger than its companion, the pentagram or five-pointed star. Its occasional appearance as a decoration gives it no claim to be a "Jewish" symbol; and even as a simple decoration it is only rarely found among our antiquities. It appears among the motifs that served to decorate ancient buildings, including the synagogue of Capernaum (2nd or 3rd century CE), but in the same synagogue the swastika is found side by side with it, and certainly no one will contend that this makes the swastika a Jewish symbol.

The six-pointed star has been discovered on an ancient Hebrew (or Phoenician) seal, but together with other signs and figures, none of which can be considered a Jewish religious symbol. It is not to be found at all in medieval synagogues or on medieval ceremonial objects, although it has been found in quite a number of medieval Christian churches — again, not as a Christian symbol, but only as a decorative motif.

Even on ancient tombstones the six-pointed star is not to be found before the 17th century, and then only in Prague. The suggestion advanced by the late hacham, Moses Gaster, that Rabbi Akiba introduced the six-pointed star as a messianic symbol in Bar Kochba's war, is entirely baseless. And as it is with R. Akiba, so is it with the 13th-century author of the Book of Splendor ("Zohar") and with the 16th-century Cabalist, R. Isaac Luria ("the Ari"). There is no reference at all to the Shield of David in their works, let alone as a symbol of Judaism. The Shield of David has neither a Jewish religious "genealogy" nor a Jewish religious significance, and it certainly had no place in the mystical world of the devout men of Israel.

The true history of the six-pointed star and its ascent to the rank of a symbol in Israel is bound up with what is called Practical Cabala, which is nothing more than Jewish magic, whose links with the theoretical doctrine of the Cabalists were always weak. Particularly, it is bound up with the use of amulets and talismans.

In this area a strong reciprocal influence was at work between the Jews and Gentiles, for nothing is more international than magic. In general, magic signs like these were called "seals" in our literature, not only because they were frequently engraved on rings — the production of magical rings of this kind was a well defined trade, and we have textbooks in this science — but also because of the common attitude that a man "seals himself" with these signs and protects himself against the assaults of evil spirits.

The virtue of this seal as a talisman was always to accomplish one thing and one thing alone: to serve as a shield against the evil spirits. Consequently we find it in many of the magical versions of the mezuzah.

Entirely different from the first, magical, root, is the second root from which the general and broader use of the Shield of David grew; that is, its official use in the seals of several Jewish communities. The "official" use of the Shield of David began in Prague and spread out from that city, in the 17th and 18th centuries, through Moravia and Austria. We do not know whether the Jews freely chose this emblem for the sign on their "flags", or whether it was thrust upon them by the Christian authorities. But even though it may have come about through compulsion and the orders of superiors constraint became custom, and the sign came to be cherished by the Jews of Bohemia and Moravia.

On the tombstone of the historian David Gans, who died in 1613, there is a six-pointed Shield of David, just as his last book, published a year before his death, is called by this name; the six-pointed star seems to have been taken over into the seal of the Jewish community. We find it as the main ornament on the title page of the first Hebrew book printed in Prague, on Hannukah in 1512; in another book printed in Prague in 1522, it is found together with the city's coat of arms, thereby indicating its quasi-official status. From then on the six-pointed Shield of David is used communally in a number of different places in Prague: on the seals of societies and individuals, on tombstones, on synagogue structures and the ironwork of the synagogue bimah, on the tower of the Jewish council's building.

From Prague this official use of the symbol spread out. In 1655 it is found on the seal of the Viennese community, and in 1690 on the seal of the community of Kremsier, in Moravia. On the wall of the old synagogue of the community of Budweis (Southern Bohemia), which was abandoned by the Jews in 1641, there are representations of Shields of David alternating with roses; apparently this is the oldest synagogue outside of Prague on which this symbol is to be found. In very isolated instances the figure of the Shield of David was used in southern Germany also, doubtless under the influence of the Prague community.

The use of amulets was still very wide-spread, especially in the East, and the devout did not trouble themselves with complex thoughts; the mimicry of Christianity inherent in the choice of the symbol was confused with its talismanic and magical properties, to which they had become accustomed—especially the simple folk—from countless amulets. Thenceforth the Shield of David began to be introduced everywhere—on the walls, on the windows and roofs of synagogues, on tombstones and medals—as though it were from Sinai.

As late as 1864, C. Wolf wrote in Vienna that he was very well acquainted with the spirit of the Jews of Moravia, and that the whole of the pious Jew's belief in the Shield of David was that it would protect him against any malevolent assault by his enemies; he did not say that it had a value as a symbol of that pious Jew's Judaism, in the sense that the cross had religious meaning for the Christian.

The upshot of the matter is this: in the very days of its greatest popularity the Shield of David was a meaningless symbol of Judaism; and the Judaism of those days, in turn, tended to be meaningless. It required more than preachers' sermons, however admirable in intent, to breathe life into a symbol. The successful and empty career of the Shield of David during the 19th century is in some measure a token of the Jewish decadence of that century.

Then the Zionists came, seeking to restore the ancient glories—or more correctly, to change the face of their people. When they chose it as symbol of Zionism at the Basle Congress in 1897, the Shield of David possessed two virtues that met the requirements of men in quest of a symbol: on the one hand, its wide diffusion during the previous century had made it known to everybody; and on the other, it was not explicitly identified with a religious association in the consciousness of their contemporaries. This lack became its virtue. The symbol did not arouse memories of the past: it could be filled with hope for the future.

But even Zionism did not do so much to confer the sacredness of a true symbol on the Shield of David as did that mad dictator who made of it a badge of shame for millions of our people, who compelled them to wear it publicly on their clothing as a badge of exclusion and of eventual extermination. Under this sign they moved along the road of horror and degradation, struggle and heroism. If there be such a thing as a soil that grows meaning for symbols, this is it.

Some have said: the sign under which they went to destruction and to the gas chambers deserves to be discarded for a sign that will signify life. But it is also possible to think in the opposite fashion, the sign that in our days was sanctified by suffering and torture, has won its right to be a sign that will light up the road of construction and life. "The going down is the prelude to the rising up;" where it was humbled, there will you find it exalted.

An infection in another part of the body, such as an abcessed tooth or infected nose and throat, may cause eye trouble. It is advisable to have eyes examined regularly by a medical eye doctor. An annual checkup of ears, nose and throat, together with blood tests and complete dental X-ray, will aid in preventing eye troubles which sometimes originate in high blood pressure, kidney disease or diabetes.

ASSEMBLE THREE FULL TRADE SCHOOLS FOR ISRAEL

The first three of the ten trade schools which the Zionist Organization of America has undertaken to establish in Israel under its new program of projects are now being assembled for shipment to the new state. Part of a complete new needle trade school, assembled by the Philadelphia ZOA, complete with spare parts and modern equipment, the needle plant is valued in excess of $50,000. This will be the second needle trade school established by the Philadelphia ZOA, the first one having been set up last year at the Israel Goldstein Youth Village in Katamon, Jerusalem, a ZOA-adopted colony.

The second trade school is now being equipped by the ZOA District in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. This will be a beauty culture school for training in hairdressing and cosmetics and will serve as a morale builder to the womanhood of Israel. Equipment for this school is being donated by Ike Isaacs, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The third trade school now being assembled is an electrical plant for which equipment is being secured from various sources in eastern Pennsylvania. This plant is expected to be completed shortly and will be designed to alleviate the shortage of trained electricians in Israel.

In addition to ten trade schools, the ZOA Israel program provides for the establishment of an American business college, recruitment of technical chalutzim in professional and mechanical skills, the collection in bulk of food, clothing and materials for distribution in the Maabaroth (transit immigrant camps), the stimulation of private investment in Israel and the redemption through the Jewish National Fund of 5,000 dunams of land in the Huleh region as a living testimonial to the ZOA.

The announcement of a supplementary project for the sending by ZOA members and districts of individual food packages to 20,000 families in the Maabaroth (transit immigrant camps) has evoked enthusiastic response from all parts of the country, the national ZOA headquarters announced. By arrangement with Service for Israel, a ZOA member in sending such food packages will select the name of a family whom he will adopt as the recipient of a food package.

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

There Is Always A Tomorrow

I know of no message that needs to be driven home to people in these days of frustration and pessimism more than the one: "There is always a tomorrow!" Because we find ourselves in difficult times there is a tendency on the part of multitudes to glorify the past, the prosperous days, and to bemoan the present, and to envision a gloomy future.

Long ago the author of Ecclesiastes warned: "Say not thou, 'How was it that the former days were better than these?' for it is not out of wisdom that thou inquirest concerning this." For mature men and women to romanticize about "the good old days" is to hold a childish and superficial view of life. Every generation has its own difficulties to face and each generation must build its span in the continuous bridge of civilization.

There are historians who believe that the thirteenth century of the Christian era was the greatest because of the Crusades and the latter's influence upon civilization. But, with all that, it must be kept in mind that the Crusades spelled the death of six millions of people. There are those who believe that the Middle Ages were the great days, for then art flourished and great music was composed. But remember that the Middle Ages had in their train the Black Plague with the resulting deaths of at least twenty-five million.

We are on the way up, despite the present frightful happenings among the peoples of the earth. We are on the way up, despite the predictions of civilization's destruction by present day prophets of doom. Centuries before Spengler wrote "The Decline of the West," there were the priests of disillusionment and pessimism who saw no hope for the human race. The truth of the matter is that the world is not going to pieces, and if it ever does it will deserve doom because of mankind's failure to make use of its instruments of progress and efficiency.

Of course, in the personal life it is natural for one to enter into a reminiscent mood. When sorrow overwhelms, it may even prove beneficial to enter the sanctuary of memory and think of days gone by that were filled with happiness. But such a mood must be only temporary. Such a mood should only be entertained for the transitory hour and not be permitted to become permanent lest it work havoc with one's soul. But even in hours of mourning that come to all at some time, the prayerbook reminds us: "Every night has its morning, after the hours of darkness come again the hours of daylight. Grant that we may arise again to do our allotted tasks in peace of soul."

The hope of tomorrow is the particular truth that must dominate particularly the youth. Youth dare not speak in accents of defeatism. Youth must not surrender to a spirit of disenchantment. It must live in a climate of courage and hope. It is absurd to give youth the impression that everything worth while has already been achieved in the world. No greater preachment can be given to our young generation than the declaration that, in a way, the world "has only just begun."

An industrialist recently stated: "If we cast off the bugaboo of 'Your world is finished' and put in its place 'The world is begun' we have a marvelous future ahead of us." This eminent director of research has definitely pointed out that the most important problem in the world today is to find out "why grass is green." If this great secret of nature could be unravelled, engines could be built to transform radiation from the sun by which to obtain electricity and chemical energy. Then the fear of exhausting our natural resources would not rest so heavily upon us. What science can do is to discover "labour creating" machinery which would mean employment for millions. The realm of research is so unlimited that it presents a challenge to thinking youth. Youth ought to be happy in this challenge which bespeaks a newer world in the offing.

Perhaps our moral civilization has received a set-back in these years. For evolution does not travel in a direct straight line. Sometimes there is a set-backward. Its way therefore is zig-zag, but ultimately there is a gain forward. However, if our day is darkened by a slipping back into barbaric ideologies how all the more challenging is the hour to restore the sunshine of justice and amity among the inhabitants of the earth.

Verily, the world depends upon its tomorrow though it rests upon its yesterdays. It is the world of tomorrow that gives us the mystic thrill and the sturdiness of heart to act and build. It is the adventure of the tomorrow that keeps us from surrendering to present despair.

EGYPT

mated 200,000 Arabs who fled Israel are billeted in the barren strip that lies between Egypt and the Israeli part of the Negeb.

In the past, these refugees have slipped across the border and robbed Israeli colonies. The trial of those caught by Egyptian soldiers was long delayed, but Egypt has now agreed to turn enforcement over to her faster working police.

The Egyptian foreign policy has been shifting during the current Assembly, and it is not clear yet where it will end up, says the New York Times. While Egyptian delegates have voted with the West on such issues as Germany and on problems relating to the Middle West and similar areas, they have attacked British and United States "imperialism" almost more often than the Russians have. Egypt has lined up with the Soviet Union in favor of an immediate ban on atomic weapons.

How much this shift will affect relations with Israel remains to be seen; nor is it clear whether Egypt will revert back to a full-fledged feud with Tel Aviv if and when there is British-Egyptian settlement. Official Egyptian comment is that Cairo's trouble with Tel Aviv is nothing more than another facet of her trouble with London.

Meanwhile, no decision has been reached as to the future of the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission, which recently threw in the sponge in its efforts to reconcile Arab-Israeli differences. There has been some talk of continuing the commission in New York in token form in case the Middle Eastern situation improves.

munist and Fascist-type organizations because such parties were pledged to bring about changes in the social system, says the New York Times.

He added that the clamoring for improvements was not confined to the peasants. Industrial workers also want improvements, he declared. He added that the Arab states in general had avoided facing these problems realistically. Dr. Robinson asserted that Jews in those countries were being made the "scapegoats." He said the position of the Jews in the four countries was one of constant insecurity.

"The negative nature of Arab nationalism, with its growing xenophobia, could not but deepen the distrust and dislike of the majority for the minorities," Dr. Robinson's report continued. "The Jews form the handiest scapegoat for every misfortune befalling the population, for the failure of the government to ease the people's sufferings," he said.

His report noted that there had been a constant emigration of Jews from Arab countries in recent years. Since the birth of Israel nearly 110,000 of a total of 120,000 Jews in Iraq have gone to Israel, according to the report.

Dr. Robinson said that about 27,000 Jews of a Jewish population of 75,000 to 85,000 in Egypt had left the country in the last few years. He said the number of Jews in Syria dropped from 29,700 in 1943 to between 6,000 and 9,000 in 1951.

Dr. Robinson referred to the lack of industrialization and cultivation of the land in the countries covered in the report. He said also that real parliamentary democracy was little known in that part of the world.

integrated program will cause drastic revision in the training of physicians in Israel.

"So far as I am aware," he said, "this is the first time a whole segment of a nation's population is going to have the advantage of a comprehensive social medical program going beyond the usual preventive and clinical practices.

"In addition, this approach of using whole populations for imparting knowledge of social medicine to medical students is unique." He explained that under the new program any student at the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School will have to study community health problems "before he is even admitted to the diagnostic and curative phases of his training."

One reason that the community approach is essential, he said, is that the influx of thousands of newcomers into Israel, many from the most backward sections of the globe, has introduced into Israel various serious diseases that could menace the country's entire population.

Dr. Paul Klemperer, professor of pathology at the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, also spoke.

Middle East peoples "may well become the loyal allies of the democratic world against military aggression and subversion," the memorandum said. But it warned that "left in status quo, they present a focal point of danger."

which believe Israel should be established along the lines of capitalistic free enterprise, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

Joseph Rivlin, managing director of the Israel Finance and Trust Co., a leading general Zionist there and, as such, a political opponent of Mr. Ben-Gurion, said at the luncheon "Ben-Gurion is not the state of Israel and the state of Israel is not Ben-Gurion." He said that "free enterprise, free initiative and a free economy would relieve Israel of its present temporary economic difficulties."

Mrs. Halprin, in denying the bankruptcy charges, noted that one basis for Mr. Ben-Gurion's criticism was that so few American Zionist leaders have settled in Israel. "American Zionists have categorically and publicly stated that the sole criterion of Zionist leadership cannot be personal immigration to Israel," she said.
